Dear AGS members:

I’m pleased to present the 2020 Annual Report with a new look that includes photos of many among us who work so hard to keep AGS the terrific organization that it is. If you have any questions about the report, please contact me at roroman@maine.rr.com.

Respectfully submitted,

Ron Romano
Secretary

Annual Meeting Minutes from 2019

June 28, 2019
Gardner Webb-University
Boiling Springs, NC

President Elise Ciregna called the meeting to order at 6:03 PM.

A quorum (20 people) was present.

Motion from John O’Brien to accept the 2018 Annual Meeting Minutes. Motion was seconded and passed, with one opposed.

President’s Report—Elise Ciregna: Elise reported that the past year was busy. We continued shoring up the office and working to have a solid administrative foundation to move forward. The office was relocated this year to downtown Greenfield. We spent a lot of time looking at our finances and thinking of ways to bolster them. We did some streamlining to be more efficient: we upgraded to QuickBooks online, so our Treasurer can quickly access records remotely; we automated our tax filings; and we moved our membership processing to an online database which will make for a smoother membership subscription experience.

Regarding fundraising, Elise noted that we issued an annual appeal letter and developed a “Giving Tuesday” appeal. These efforts led to about $20,000 in donations this year, a large portion of which was from one donor. Elise thanked everyone who donated and promised that we will put those donations to good use and manage them responsibly.

Finally, as her term as President comes to an end, Elise expressed her thanks to the board and Andrea Carlin.

Markers Report—Beth Roark: Beth referred to her written report, and had one correction: Markers wasn’t ready in May, but has now been shipped, and members began receiving it last Monday. It’s Beth’s second edition and she said she was proud of it. She welcomes feedback from the membership.

Chapters Report—Perky Beisel: Perky had updates to her written report: there are now forms on the AGS website for Chapter leadership to use for reporting, and also for members to apply to be a new chapter. Chapters that have completed their reports are listed on the website. Perky thanked her committee—they’ve had a lot of good discussions and continue to be robust.

Motion by John O’Brien to accept the annual reports. The motion was seconded and approved.
Election of Officers: There was a Motion by Joe Edgette to accept the slate as presented in the annual report. The motion was seconded and passed.

2019 Conference Update—Bill Harding and June Hobbs: June reported that we have about 100 participants. They worked this year to make things a little different, have even more fun than we usually do and she said that it has been successful. She acknowledged the keynote speaker for her mix of music and fresh views, and she thanked Lynne Baggett and Anne Tait for their art exhibit. June noted that she and Bill have planned a fun awards banquet to include a performance by a bluegrass band, followed by a celebration instead of lectures. The town of Boiling Springs invited us to have our reception and refreshments at town hall, followed by a tour of the Baptist Church Cemetery. Townspeople are also invited.

Bill and June thanked:

- Elise for her help and guidance
- Joe and Rich for coordinating the lectures
- Bob Keeler and Judy Juntunen for coordinating the participation sessions
- Beth for being the Registrar
- The Scholarship Committee for choosing our student award winner
- Gardner-Webb student volunteers—Amelia Barnes and Elizabeth Covington
- Susan Pynchon in the AGS office
- Melvin and Tom Mason for coordinating the Silent Auction
- The Awards Committee: Judy Juntunen, Lynne Baggett, and Anne Tait
- Jason Church for coordinating the Conservation Workshop
- The staff at Gardner-Webb University
- Bill Bibby at Elmwood Cemetery in Charlotte, and
- Joshua Darty at Historic Riverside Cemetery in Asheville

Elise presented flowers to June and Bill to thank them for making this a fabulous conference.
President’s Report
Dennis Montagna

Like every other organization, AGS is trying to figure out how to operate in a world that looks very different than it did only a few months ago. For the first time in our more than forty-year history, we are not getting together for the annual rite that we’ve come to know as “Cemetery Camp.” We’re a group that really cherishes opportunities to be together, whether at the Annual Conference or at events planned by the eighteen AGS chapters around the U.S. The Covid-19 Pandemic has prevented those things and has challenged us to find other ways to create community and to share our love of gravestones and burial spaces.

Thanks to the initiative and energy of three of our board members, Ashlynn Rickord Werner, Christina Bain, and Elizabeth Clappin, AGS launched a series of on-line seminars throughout the month of May that examined the roles that cemeteries play during times of pandemic. In effect, the crisis has encouraged us do some things that we should have been doing anyway, to search out new ways to provide meaningful programming to our members and to the larger community of those who study and seek to preserve burial spaces.

Creating digital content that can engage a wide audience and then be preserved for later viewing is the most dramatic, but not the only effort to help move AGS forward during the past year. Thanks to the efforts of Secretary Ron Romano, along with Andrea Carlin and Susan Pynchon in the Greenfield office, we have addressed some longstanding needs. We now provide insurance coverage for our regional chapters and for our board of directors, the roles of our office staff are now more clearly defined, and systems used to carry out AGS business have been made much more efficient.

Despite our advances in outreach and other areas, long-standing financial challenges remain and will need our concerted attention if AGS is going to thrive. Income derived from membership dues is down, and we won’t be seeing the income bump that usually accompanies the Annual Conference. We’ll have challenges as we move forward, but I’m confident that we will bring the creativity that has marked the many advances made by the Association during the past year to the pressing task of achieving financial health. I look forward to better days ahead, and to working with you all to ensure that we keep AGS viable and strong.
Treasurer’s Report

Beth Santore

After sharing that we were operating with a small net income of $4,612 in 2018, we were back to operating at a deficit of $6,580 in 2019. Even though the conference did very well financially, we did not send an annual appeal letter last year which resulted in a large decrease in donations. Our membership dues were also down $6,281 compared to 2018.

To continue to improve our financial situation, we need to think of new, creative fundraising opportunities. We should also consider another annual appeal to solicit donations, and we also need to focus on ways to retain current members and gain new members. We cannot always rely on a large conference profit, as the costs to hold the conference vary so much each year. I encourage the membership to share any ideas they may have with the board as well.

It has been my honor to serve as treasurer these past six years, and I look forward to seeing everyone at the 2021 conference!

Nominating Committee Report for 2020

Mark Nonestied, Chair

For the first time in its history, AGS introduced an electronic ballot in 2020 for those members wishing to vote in advance of the meeting. Mail-in absentee ballots were also provided to members in the Spring 2020 Quarterly newsletter. Those members who did not vote either electronically or by mail-in absentee ballot are invited to vote at the annual meeting.

I am pleased to submit the following nominations:

Nominated for a third 2-year term to the Board of Trustees:

- Joe Ferrannini (NY)

Nominated for a second 2-year term to the Board of Trustees:

- Dennis Montagna (PA)
- Ashlynn Rickord Werner (MA)
- Ron Romano (ME)
- Anne Tait (RI)

Nominated for a first 2-year term to the Board of Trustees:

- Lynne Baggett (LA)
- Christina Bain (MA)
- Robin Simonton (NC)
- Julian Weiss (MA)

Nominated for a first 2-year term as Treasurer:

- Ashlynn Rickord Werner (MA)

(Bios for first term and Treasurer nominees are found on the next page)
Bios for new nominees for the Board of Trustees:

Lynne Baggett, a past trustee of the Association for Gravestone Studies, earned her degrees from Stockport College and the University of Derby. She spent five years in London as a graphic designer before relocating to the United States, where she now serves as professor of art in graphic design, teaching at Louisiana State University. Her area of research is letter forms and typography.

Christina Bain is the former and founding director of Babson College’s Initiative on Human Trafficking and Modern Slavery, and previously was the founding director of the Harvard Kennedy School’s Program on Human Trafficking and Modern Slavery. Prior to creating and directing academic programs on human trafficking, Christina served in various positions in Massachusetts state government. Christina is also an artist and a life-long native of Boston’s North Shore. Her artistic works are inspired by the history, beauty, and serenity of the New England landscape, including sacred and spiritual places. Her cemetery art has been featured in venues such as Monserrat College of Art’s Artrageous! Art Auction as well as the Boston Globe’s Scholastic Art and Writing Awards Competition. Christina is part of the leadership of the Northeast New England Chapter of AGS.

Robin Simonton has been the Executive Director of Historic Oakwood Cemetery since November of 2011. Robin holds a BA in US History from the University of Hawaii and an MA in Historical Administration from Eastern Illinois University. Previously, she was the Program and Volunteer Services Executive at Girl Scouts - North Carolina Coastal Pines. Robin served as the researcher of the book Oahu Cemetery: Burial Ground & Historic Site, written by Nanette Napoleon in 1997 and wrote a case study in the book Cemetery Tours and Programming in 2017 by Rachel Wolgemuth. She and the cemetery’s historian Bruce Miller wrote Images of...
America: Historic Oakwood Cemetery, published in 2017. Currently, Robin is a member of the board of directors for Transition Life Care. Robin and her husband Jeff live in Rolesville, NC with their 9-year-old son, Cullen.

Julian Weiss is a Massachusetts native living on Cape Cod, and is currently a graduate student of World Heritage Studies at the Brandenburg University of Technology in Cottbus, Germany. During his time in this graduate program, he has elected to focus exclusively on cemeteries in the contexts of preservation, sustainability, and community; except on the occasions in which he has been mandated to focus elsewhere. Currently, he is writing his master’s thesis on capacity building for cemeteries and communities, taking inspiration from and adapting international heritage guidelines published by UNESCO and two of its advisory bodies, ICCROM and ICOMOS.

Bio for Treasurer nominee:

Ashlynn Rickord Werner is the Cemetery Director for the City of Providence, Rhode Island. She received her Master of Theological Studies degree from Harvard Divinity School where she researched the religious life and cemeteries at mental hospitals and state schools for the disabled throughout Massachusetts. Beyond historical research, Ashlynn has worked for over a decade in the public history fields having worked in various archives, museums, and historical commissions. She currently resides in Foxboro, MA with her husband. Ashlynn chairs the AGS Membership Committee, Emerging Professionals group, and is in charge of the Northeast New England Chapter of AGS. Ashlynn was the 2017 Student Scholarship Conference presenter.
Committee Reports

Preservation Committee Report
Jason Church, Chair

Over the past year, members of the Preservation Committee have answered dozens of questions from people who are seeking advice from AGS on a wide range of topics—from the general “How do we get started?” to very specific issues and concerns about particular sites and stones. We encourage members to send us questions (with pictures) of issues they are having or advice they are seeking. The committee is currently reviewing the AGS Field Guides produced years ago and is meeting to rewrite them and bring them up to today’s conservation standards so that we can re-release them to the public.

AGS preservation programs are the best!
Membership Committee Report
Ashlynn Rickord Werner, Chair

Over the past year, the Membership Committee has conducted extensive research and brainstormed how to improve it. A focus has been on reworking the membership categories and donation levels to consolidate them into a more manageable structure. The committee has also been collaborating with the administrative staff on wider implementation of our new membership software, Wild Apricot. AGS leadership hopes that these changes will make the membership renewal process easier, and will engage our members in new and interesting ways in the years to come.

The Membership Committee has also been thinking strategically about member recruitment and has identified three target groups for new members: emerging professionals, international members, and certain geographical regions that lack substantive membership.

Finally, the committee has been reviewing policies as they relate to data collection and sharing. In particular, this applies to the access policy for Wild Apricot for a public directory that AGS is looking to offer. More to come in 2020 on this!

Markers Annual Report
Elisabeth Roark, Editor

Markers XXXVI was sent to press on June 2, 2020 and should be received by the membership in about two weeks. Like last year, the issue ran later than usual primarily due to the pandemic. Switching to online instruction from mid-March to late April was all-consuming. Markers XXXVI has the editor’s introduction, four articles, the annual bibliography, and index. The articles further Markers mission of publishing analytical and interpretive content from a range of disciplines, time periods, and geographic locations.

As of September 2019, I had received 23 inquiries about submitting to Markers, a record in my time as editor. Of those inquiries, ten submitted manuscripts. Nine of the manuscripts were sent to two readers each for their feedback. The tenth had problems with the illustrations that I asked the author to correct. I sent her manuscript out late to only one reviewer and then decided to hold it for review for next year’s issue. I requested feedback from the readers by mid to late October. I selected the final four in early December (and invited two of the additional authors to revise and resubmit their manuscripts) and begin to work on revisions with the authors right away. I received two revised drafts in January and two in early February. I began submitting drafts to the designer in early February and then sent on the first designed drafts to the authors, along with my editing, to get their feedback. I worked with Jan Miele, our designer, on between three and six drafts for each manuscript. There were five drafts of the bibliography and three drafts of my introduction.

I also re-wrote the “Notes for Contributors” and the Markers page on the AGS website, with the help of Jan Miele. I received the bibliographies from Simon Braune later than usual this year, in early March rather than late December, which also slowed things down a bit.

Work on Markers XXXVII is already underway. I have received four inquiries, two abstracts, three manuscripts, and one promise to revise and resubmit.

As always, I am open to suggestions from the board about how to strengthen Markers. It is my objective to continue to produce a peer-reviewed journal that is broadly respected in the field and of interest to our membership.

Archives Committee Report

Elizabeth Broman, Chair

In 2019, the Archives Committee completed the majority of its work related to the 2018 acquisition of the Pamela Burgess Gover papers. In September, AGS Executive Committee and Archives Committee members spent a day at the AGS office processing the gift. Some great stories were discovered within these papers in the ten boxes we had received and some treasures were found in the books that came with her donation.
Much of the gift will be delivered to UMass Amherst to be housed with the rest of our collections.

We also began to process some items donated by Vincent Luti.
This acquisition includes 98 gravestone rubbings, and work on this collection continues into 2020.

We tried on a couple of occasions last year to organize a visit for interested board members to our collections at UMass Amherst, though scheduling conflicts prevented us from doing so. We hope to arrange for such a visit when it is safe to do so.
The Chapters Committee’s 2019 activities focused on three key areas. First was the improvement of our presence on the AGS website. We have a new contact email address: agschapters@gmail.com and we revised our information for an improved page on the AGS website, https://www.gravestonestudies.org/welcome/ags-chapters. The website lists all current AGS chapters—there are now 18, including the recent reactivation of the Western New England chapter. We also worked on streamlining the process by which chapters can submit information to the committee to verify good standing via quarterly reports and report chapter events.

The second area of focus was to address a large concern across all chapters regarding questions about the need for liability insurance to cover their local events. We worked with AGS secretary Ron Romano and the AGS insurance agent towards a positive solution, which was finalized early in 2020. There is no need for AGS chapters to seek local liability insurance, as the master policy for the organization extends to coverage for chapters.

The final area of focus was to support the chapters’ ongoing events. In 2019, there were 20 chapter events held across the country. While there is still some uncertainty that chapters will be able to conduct events in 2020, we are in a better position to support our chapters when things begin to come back to normal.
Donor List for 2019

On this page, we recognize the many kind people who donated cash, goods, and services during the calendar year 2019. We also recognize the substantial donations of time, knowledge and cash that AGS Trustees and committee members make throughout the year as we work to keep AGS the excellent organization that is has become. Thank you, one and all!
